

IMI Global Acquires Controlling Interest in ICS

Integrated Management Information, Inc. ("IMI Global") (OTCBB: INMG), based in Castle Rock, Colorado, a leading provider of verification services to the food and agriculture industries, recently announced it has acquired a controlling interest in International Certification Services, Inc. ("ICS"), based in Medina, North Dakota. ICS, founded in 1979, is a leading provider of organic certification services to the world's producers and processors of crops, livestock, dairy products, produce and packaged foods. Together, IMI and ICS will provide the industry's most comprehensive range of verification services for U.S. Department of Agriculture ("USDA"), international and proprietary programs and standards including organic, antibiotic free, non-hormone treated, gluten-free, natural, sustainable, and animal welfare.

John Saunders, founder and CEO of IMI Global, commented, "This partnership has tremendous synergies for both IMI Global and ICS. As industry leaders in our respective product and service offerings, we are now positioned to offer one another's customers new solutions across the verification and certification spectrum. And in addition to better serving our customers, we expect this transaction to accelerate our revenue growth and to be accretive to earnings." Christina Dockter, President and CEO of ICS, commented, "We are excited about our new relationship with IMI Global and the benefits that this transaction will bring to our customer base in the form of IMI Global's Where Food Comes From™ suite of solutions."

Silvergrove Advisors initiated this transaction and acted as financial advisor to IMI Global. Brian Moloney, CEO of Silvergrove, commented, "We conducted a comprehensive search for acquisition opportunities to extend IMI's verification and certification capabilities across all food groups and supply chain participants, and identified ICS as an attractive platform for addressing growing worldwide demand for certified organic food products. The transaction unites two leaders in the emerging market for verification services, and is a strong example of Silvergrove's buy-side advisory capabilities."
